The principle is deceptively basic:

1. The gamer puts a wager.
2. The gamer sets a target multiplier (e.g., 2.0 x, 10.0 x, and even 1,000 x).
3. The game creates a random multiplier outcome.
4. If the created multiplier is equal to or higher than the target multiplier, the player wins. If it falls short, the bet is lost.

The name "Limbo" is originated from the timeless celebration game "How low can you go?"-- except in this context, players are generally aiming as high as their threat appetite will allow.

How Limbo Works: The Mechanics

Understanding the mechanics of Limbo requires looking at how probabilities and payouts communicate. Unlike traditional slots where the gambling establishment determines the RTP (Return to Player) through complex reels and signs, Limbo provides transparent, adjustable chances determined entirely by the player.

When a gamer changes their target multiplier, the game immediately computes two vital metrics:

- Win Chance: The analytical probability of striking that target.
- Payment: The prospective return based upon the wager.

The Mathematics Behind Limbo

Most credible crypto gambling establishments offering Limbo run with a basic house edge of 1%, suggesting the real mathematical possibility is a little tilted in favor of your home.

Here is a glimpse at how different target multipliers affect the win opportunity and prospective payout on a hypothetical £ 10 bet:

Target Multiplier Theoretical Win Chance (%) Payout on £ 10 Bet 1.01 x 98.01% £ 10.10 2.00 x 49.50% £ 20.00
5.00 x 19.80% £ 50.00 10.00 x 9.90% £ 100.00 50.00 x 1.98% £ 500.00 100.00 x 0.99% £ 1,000.00 1,000.00 x
0.099% £ 10,000.00

As the table illustrates, the higher the target multiplier, the lower the likelihood of winning. On the other hand, lower targets provide a near 50/50 proposal.
