Does Insurance Cover Drug Rehab in San Diego HGR California Insurance coverage for drug rehabs in San Diego is an important practical consideration, and the answer in most cases is yes: most PPO insurance plans are required to cover addiction treatment at parity with other medical conditions under federal and state mental health parity laws. The Mental Health Parity and Addiction Equity Act (MHPAEA) requires most insurance plans to cover substance use disorder treatment at the same level as other medical benefits. This means that if your plan covers a medical hospitalization, it must cover inpatient drug rehab treatment at a comparable level. The specific coverage details depend on your individual plan, including your deductible, out-of-pocket maximum, and any utilization management requirements like prior authorization. HGR's admissions team has experience drug rehabs San Diego CA working with major insurance carriers and is familiar with the authorization process for all levels of care, including drug detox, residential treatment, and IOP. They can guide families through the insurance verification process and explain what coverage is available under a specific plan before any admission decision is made.
