A few ants on the kitchen counter in April can turn into a steady parade by June. Roanoke homeowners see several kinds, including odorous house ants that smell like rotten coconut when crushed, pavement ants that nest under driveways and slabs, and carpenter ants that hollow out damp wood. Perdue Exterminators treats all of them through its ant extermination service, and the first step is always figuring out which ant https://linktr.ee/kh472238xzvwm you are dealing with.

Identification changes the plan. Sugar loving house ants respond well to targeted baits that workers carry back to the colony, while spraying a repellent across the trail can split one colony into several. Carpenter ants are a different concern because they excavate galleries inside wood that has been softened by moisture, often around windows, roof eaves, decks and bathroom floors. They do not eat wood the way termites do, but over time the damage adds up. Perdue's insect identification service takes the guesswork out of it.

Virginia humidity helps ants thrive. Damp crawl spaces, leaking gutters and wooded lots that back onto homes in Cave Spring, Bent Mountain Road and the edges of Salem give colonies plenty of nesting options. Trees that touch the roofline act like bridges, letting ants walk straight from a nest outside into an attic. Technicians look for these conditions during every visit and point them out so homeowners can fix them.

Treating at the Source

Perdue Exterminators aims to stop pest problems at the source so they do not keep coming back. With ants, that means locating nests where possible, treating entry points around the foundation, and placing products where foraging workers will carry them home. Exterior perimeter treatment, sometimes described by customers as the yard power spray, builds a barrier that keeps outdoor colonies from moving inside when the weather turns hot and dry.

Customers often mention how clearly the technicians explain what they found. One reviewer on the company website noted getting advice about ants and other pests along with the treatment itself, which is the kind of practical help that keeps problems from returning. Small habits matter too: wipe counters at night, store sweets and pet food in sealed containers, and trim shrubs back from siding.

Are termites common in Roanoke, Virginia?

Because other insects look similar, Perdue Exterminators starts every bed bug case in Roanoke, Salem and Vinton with a free inspection and consultation to confirm the problem first.

Why are there so many crickets in my basement?

Camel crickets thrive in damp basements and crawl spaces, which are common in older Roanoke homes with stone or block foundations. Is a local pest control company better than a national chain?

A local company usually means familiar technicians, a local office that answers the phone and real knowledge of area housing and pest patterns. Perdue Exterminators has a technician who has been with the company since 1980, and its motto is large enough to serve you, but small enough to know you.

How long has Perdue Exterminators been in business?

S.G. Perdue founded the company in 1969, starting out of his house and the trunk of his car. His son Andre later joined the business, and today it is led by owner and President Jeff Hudson. It remains a family owned pest control company serving Roanoke.
