Singapore's string instrument market includes everything from mass-produced factory violins to fine handcrafted instruments of genuine artistic and acoustic value. LVL Music Academy occupies a distinctive position in this market, specialising in handcrafted modern and antique violins that offer serious players a quality of tone and construction that factory instruments simply cannot match. Co-founder Alan Senejani's expertise as a luthier gives LVL a unique ability to source, assess, and present handcrafted violins with genuine authority. Alan can explain the tonal characteristics of different woods, the impact of varnish on sound, and the construction details that distinguish a fine instrument from an ordinary one. For players who are ready to invest in a quality handcrafted violin, this level of guidance is invaluable. The selection of handcrafted violins at LVL changes as new instruments are sourced and assessed. Customers who are looking for a specific type of instrument student cello Singapore are welcome to describe their requirements and Alan will advise on what is available or what to look for in the future.
